DOINGS IN AND ABOUT TOWN

Breezy Little Notes of General Interest Picked up Here and There.

A full line of Millinery Stock at T. T. Hunter,s. 4-6-tf

About 500 head of cattle were shipped through here on Wednesday from Globe to Kansas.

M. A. Leahy was in the city from Thomas on business last Saturday. Mr. Leahy is making a lot of substantial improvements on his property at Thomas.

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Despain's baby, of Thatcher, had one of its fingers caught in the cogs of a wringer and had the bones badly crushed up to the first joint.

Miss Lee Hunter was welcomed home again by her numerous friends last Saturday, from Corralitos, Mexico, where she has been for about three months.

John Besner, Monroe Boggs, Abe Perkins and Sam Bryant four of Safford's young men started for Bisbee last Tuesday, where they expect to secure work at the mines.

J. G. Allred, Thatcher's rustling merchant, received a large assortment of men's and boy's clothing and children's shoes, last week, which he is selling at bed-rock prices. Call and inspect his stock

Miss Rose Hattich, one of Tombstone's teacher's and Miss Nell Barrow, daughter of the enterprising merchant, S. M. Barrow, of the same place, are here on a visit, the guests of Miss Lydia Blair.

Prest. Layton has received the appointment as one of the vice-presidents for Arizona to the Territorial Fair of New Mexico to be held at Albuquerque from Sept. 17th to the 24th inclusive.

Mrs. P. Sullivan, and Mr. and Mrs. French's little daughter returned home last Saturday from California, where they had been visiting for the last two or three months.

Harry Warren, who taught the school in the Lone Star district last year, and who has been teaching the school at Cooney N. M. for the last four montos returned to Safford this week.

Last week the Midland Construction Company gave bonds for the property which Assessor Michelena levsed on the week before—all the property used in the construction of the road.

Last Tuesday evening Mrs. P. Sullivan presented us with a basket of the finest peaches it has been our good fortune to see this year. They were beauties and the Sullivan orchard is loaded with the same kind of fruit. Thanks.

E. F. Hubbard, of the firm of Blair & Hubbard, millers, of Mathewsville, was in the city this week and left us a sample of their first grade flour which we do not hesitate to pronounce as good as any manufactured in the west.

Last Tuesday while Burt Harris was running a mowing machine in Peter Anderson's meadows he narrowly escaped being killed by lightening. The shock stuned him so that he fell from the machine and one of the horses fell to its knees. Burt is all right now.

We are happy to state that Mrs. Allen, of Thatcher, who has been seriously ill for several months is on the improve. Two or three weeks ago she had a relapse but rallied and is now much improved. Her fortitude throughout her long and severe illness has been wonderful.

Yuma Can Pass.

The well known story concerning the man from Yuma who died, went to hell and sent back for his over coat, can now be considered as ancient history, if a recent arrival from Phenix, who came up here a few days ago to cool off, can be believed. He says a prominent citizen of that place died there not long since during one of the hot spells, and his body was taken to Los Angeles to be cremated. After reposing in the furnace several hours at a temperature of about 300 degrees, the attendants opened the doors and found the Phenician sitting up in his pie pan, shivering with cold. As the draft from the open door struck him, he cuddled up in one corner and bellowed out. "For God's sake close that door, or I'll catch my death of cold."—Journal-Miner.

EXCURSION RATES.

The following rates are effective on the Santa Fe road. From Deming or El Paso to Salt Lake City and return good for 90 days $60.00; to Denver good until October 31st $40.00; to Colorado Springs $37.50. Conditions same as the Denver tickets.

THE CLASSIFICATION LAW.

Sustained by the Supreme Court of Arizona.

SAVING TO GRAHAM COUNTY OF $8,130.00 PER YEAR.

Judges Rouse and Hawkins Render the Decision—Judge Baker Absent and Ill in California.

A few days ago, Judge Rouse, among other things wrote to District Attorney Jones: "The Court decided in favor of the Classification Bill. Many favorable comments were made on your speech and brief in that case. The GUARDIAN has always asserted that such would be the final decision, but the strong efforts for its overthrow, the extreme prejudice sought to be aroused against the manner of its enrollment and final passage, together with the uncertainty which always attends litigated matters caused the friends of the measure to feel great anxiety at all times until the final announcement of its validity.

Judge Baker, through illness, was detained in California, and Judges Rouse and Hawkins were of like opinion in sustaining the law. The opinion has not been written out in full yet, but judgment sustaining the law has been rendered in the case. The following is the saving to Graham county:

Treasurer - - -	$1,800
Recorder - - - -	1,500
Clerk of Board - -	480
District Attorney - -	1,250
Probate Judge - -	500
Immigration Commissioner -	1,400
Assessor - - -	1,200
Total - - - -	8,130

At the above figures, the saving to Graham county in two years will amount to 16,260. We have included in the above saving the matter of Immigration Commissioner, as the general opinion among lawyers, not among newspaper men, is that there is nothing left to support the Immigration Commissioner,—that it "died a bornin'." This view will not meet the approval of the "Immigration Commission press" of Arizona, but the courts and not the press interpret the law.

Omitting the matter of Immigration Commissioner, the saving to Graham county will be $6,730 per year, or $13,460 in two years. Had the decision of the Supreme Court been adverse to this law, it would have been a much more difficult matter to enact a similar law two years hence. As it is, the matter has been effectually settled, and the people can truly say that the Eighteenth Legislature was not wholly a failure, as some papers would have us believe.

All honor to the Supreme Court of Arizona.

Rev. D. Roberts has been quite ill this week.

GIDEON BIERBOWER FOX.

Dies at the Hot Springs After a Lingering Illness of Thirty Days.

GENERAL PERITONETIS THE CAUSE.

His Brother, Harry, and Several Anxious Friends Watch the Death Struggle Until the End, Which Came at 11:20 p. m. August First.

As the hands of the clock indicated twenty minutes after eleven o'clock on Thursday night, Aug. 1st, the soul of G. B. Fox passed to that unknown realm to swell the countless numbers that have gone before. From six o'clock in the evening it was seen that the end was approaching, that it was inevitable and the stroke of death unerring.

Every possible human effort was exerted to ease the closing hours of the sufferer. At eight o'clock the indications of the dying struggle became more pronounced, and for over three hours the fever stricken body tossed about the bed in excessive nervousness, exhausting what vital force yet remained to continue life.

The necessities of the case called for the liberal administering of morphine from the effects of which he never fully rallied. Shortly before the end, the struggles became more and more violent, and the weary body of the sufferer, in the convulsions of approaching death was like the unceasing rising and falling of a frail craft amid the lashing waves of the mighty ocean. One convulsive shudder succeeded another during these intervals, ending in one feeble, spasmodic gasp and all was over.

The willing hands of tender, sympathizing friends prepared the body for burial and on the following Friday evening as the sun was hidden behind the western mountains the casket with its remains were borne to the military cemetery at Fort Thomas and given a place of rest. The pall bearers were H. F. Williams, Harry Peehan John Hendrickson, J. E. Yeager, Andrew Alexander, C. B. Young, C. E. Elder and James Gibson.

Rev. D. Roberts, of this place, at six o'clock, conducted the funeral ceremonies in the Collins building, which were brief and impressive, and amid the deepening shadows of evening the clods solemnly fell upon the pulseless remains of the departed.

The deceased, usually called George Fox, was one of the most upright and agreeable gentlemen that ever claimed a home in any community. He had resided in Graham county as Chief Engineer of the G. V. G. & N. Ry., for about fourteen months. He was born in Lebanon county, Pa., twenty-eight years ago. He leaves as sorrowing relatives, a widowed mother, about 55 years of age and a married sister in Philadelphia, a brother Harvey, in Illinois, and his brother Harry, of the GUARDIAN, who was constantly at his bedside during the last ten days of his illness.

A. C. Laird, of the Gila Valley railroad, did not reach the bedside of the deceased until life had fled, but with affectionate sympathetic tenderness did much toward consoling the brother, Harry, in his sad bereavement.

Harry Peehan and H. F. Williams gave many watchful, sleepless hours at the bedside of the deceased during his hours of suffering. Dr. J. H. Lacey, of Solomonville, was the attending physician, and with anxious solicitude, was constantly with the patient during the last forty-eight hours of his life, doing everything possible to afford relief and arrest the ravages of the malady which was typhoid fever, superinduced by general peritonetis several hours before death. The deceased had every care of sympathetic hands, every attention of medical skill and everything to aid recovery, but the ailment had become so deep seated that human efforts were of but little avail.

He had resided in the west about twelve years, and had that happy disposition to make friends wherever known. Although not long a resident of Graham county, he leaves a host of friends in our midst. Among all of his numerous acquaintances there was never an unkind word for George B. Fox. Wherever a word was uttered touching his disposition, his traits of character, his daily life and associations, it was a word of most favorable comment, complimentary in its import, and bestowed upon one who was universally recognized as possessing worth and merit.

At some future time when deemed advisable the remains will be taken to the old home in Pennsylvania and given a final resting place amid the hills and changing scenes of his earliest years.

GONE TO BLOW UP THE SPANISH.

Thomas Carroll of Bridgeport to Teach the Cubans His Secret.

Thomas Carroll of Bridgeport has gone to Cuba under contract with the insurgent to furnish a large supply of a high explosive which he has the secret formula for making.

It is cheaper and better for the revolutionists to make the explosive on the spot than to ship it from this country, and all the necessary ingredients can be found in Cuba. Mr. Carroll said:

"I am to be there six weeks. With fifty men we can blow up 1,000,000 of the best drilled soldiers in the world. We can put torpedoes under water and blow up ships and destroy cables. Water or dampness does not interfere. Under all the roads we can plant the explosive.

"It can be placed in old tomato cans in paper cartridges and fired from guns. I do not know how the Cubans have planned their campaign, but with this high explosive no generalship is needed. A boy can blow up half the island of Cuba. The revolutionists have given me my price and I am going to provide them with the material."

From Cuba Mr. Carrllo says he will go to San Francisco to meet agents of the Chilian Government.

A Sad Death.

The death of Mrs. Thompson, at this place last Tuesday morning of tuberculous enteritis aroused the sympathy of the whole community for the five orphans which she leaves, and also brought forth universal condemnation of the brute of a husband who had deserted her a couple of months ago, leaving her in a delicate condition. We are informed that this inhuman monster left her in a hut near the foot of Mt. Graham, from which the nearest water was half a mile distance and just one dollar and a couple of goats for herself and children to subsist upon, and he has never been heard of since. She remained at this place for several weeks until she was nearly starved when J. D. Hartzler and Chas. Francis learned of her condition and brought her to Safford, where she could receive medical treatment. She has been in a precarious condition ever since she was brought here, and on the 25th of last month her baby was born, and last Tuesday she passed away. During her illness she was in constant fear that Thompson would return and do her bodily harm for allowing the condition he left her in to be known, and on her death bed requested that, should he return, none of her children be given to him. We think, however, that he will not return to claim them, for if he should the treatment he deserves will no doubt be meted out to him.

Mrs. Thompson was 24 years of age; she did not know where any of her relatives were except one step-daughter, from whom she received a letter a few days before her death stating that Thompson was in Deming.

The funeral was held the same day she died, which was largely attended. The funeral serveces were read by Wm. Place, and her remains were interred in the Safford burial ground. Dr. Reed who had been attending her, and Mr. and Mrs. Glass, as soon as Mrs. Thompson died took charge of the children. Numerous families asked the privilege of taking charge of the children and the following ladies each took one to her home: Mrs. Peter Anderson, Mrs Rollins, Mrs. Wm. Packer, Mrs. Hans Jorgenson, and Mrs. Stukey.

Men like the fellow Thompson should be shuned as a leper would be. There is no reason assigned for his treatment of his wife; he was making a fairly good living peddling meat in this and adjoining towns when he deserted her, and her death was caused from his neglect.

Maximo Gonzalez, 67 years of age, met death at 2:30 August 3d under a falling house. The accident occured two miles beyond Tempe on Hayden's ranch. Gonzalez and two boys were sleeping in the house, an old and fragile adobe with a heavy dirt roof.

Without sudden cause or any warning the roof fell in and immediately afterward the walls collapsed. Gonzalez was instantly killed, the weight falling upon him with so great a force that his bones were crushed and his body literally flattened against the hard dirt floor. Both boys were severely if not dangerously injured.—Republican.

A Silver City woman, Mrs. O. L. Scott, is entitled to the term of "new lady." Her dwelling was completely demolished by the late flood and her possessions swept out of existance and her life saved by much effort. Her neighbors made up a purse and offered it to her in her destitution when she thanked them kindly for their consideration, requested them to use the money for those who could not care for themselves and indicated that she retained her good health and strength and that while she had those she was able to supply her own necessities. That woman is entitled to the term, the "new lady."—Phenix Herald.

On Monday, while Wm. Roden Jr., Curley Wallace and Buck Rasor were hunting cattle on the Little Colorado river, near the mouth of the San Francisco wash, and six miles above Wolf's trading post, they found a human foot and leg. The coyotes had eaten a portion of the flesh from the bones. They commenced a search for other portions of a human body, and their search was rewarded in a short time by the finding of a rude grave among the sand and stones, an examination revealed the lower portion of a human body. The coyotes had dug away the dirt covering the lower limbs and had carried away the parts thereof found. From appearances the body is that of a white man, and was dressed in a brown suit of clothes. It would also appear that the grave was hurriedly dug and shallow, and evidently made with a large knife or similar instruments. The body was buried in a cramped position, as though the hole was too small and the body was forced into it. The place where the body was found is an isolated one and is about forty miles from this place, Wolf's store being the nearest habitation. The crime, if one has been committed, was done about six weeks ago.—Courier.

The Holliday Hot Springs.

The Holliday Hot Springs, situated about 2 1-2 miles north of Curtis are daily gaining a reputation as a Health resort, and at present there are quite a number of families there enjoying the healthful baths of the hot mineral water in the bathrooms of the Holliday hotel. Many persons who have visited these springs pronounce the water equally as healthful as that of the hot springs in Arkansas. Mr. John Holliday, the proprietor, has four large bathrooms built in adition to the hotel and the water is conveyed from the springs, which are about 100 yards north east of the house, in large pipes, thus retaining all the heat and quality. The ditch of surplus water runs through an excellent bed of lime rock, which is being burned into the finest lime in this secton. The rock as it comes from its bed has a decided yellow color, but when taken from the Kiln presents a snowy whiteness. Mr. Holliday feels a pardonable pride in his possessions and believes that in course of time the springs will receive a wide and favorable reputation.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

Jose Maria Sortillon Will Not Hang.

Judge J. H. Kibbey a few days ago received a telegram from his partner attorney M. H. Williams, at Prescott, stating that the Supreme Court had reversed the decision in the Sortillon case and had sustained the decision in the Juana Walker case.

In the first named case the decision of the Supreme Court meant life or death to a man who for three years has been an inmate of the county jail. The United States grand jury setting in Phenix returned a true bill charging Jose Maria Sortillon with burying alive on November 12, 1892, on the Indian reservation near Yuma, the one-day-old male child of Guerre, an Indian woman. The same month the indictment was found he was tried for the murder of the babe, the jury failing to agree. The prisoner was returned to jail where he remained until the May term of court of the next year when he was again tried and on the 25th of that month the jury brought in a verdict of guilty as charged and on June 5th Judge Baker sentenced him to be hung in the court house yard at Phenix on July 27th.

Attorney Kibbey took an appeal to the Supreme Court, where the case has rested until this morning, when a decision was handed down granting the prisoner a new trial and saving his neck from the halter for the present at least.

When Judge Kibby informed his client of the decision this morning a look of great happiness overspread his face and he remarked, "I am glad." It was certainly cheering news to a man who for the past three years has been deprived of his liberty behind iron bars and who for over a year has stood in the shadow of the gallows tree.

The decision on the Juana Walker case was another triumph for Judge Kibbey and the decision of the lower court which gives the estate to the brother of John Walker, and casts aside Juana Walker, who claimed to be the daughter of the dead millionaire, and ends a most stubbornly contested case.—Phenix Herald.

Killed by Lightning.

Last Tuesday evening at about 4 o'clock in Solomonville, a few steps from the house of Jesus Aceveda, a stroke of lightning killed an old man named Juan Guzman and his horse. Mart Taylor was about 40 or 50 steps away from the unfortunate man at the time of his death and was somewhat dazed by the concussion but not injured.

The thunderbolt struck the man on the side of the head, descending down the right side of the body to the ground, blistering the body from head to foot, and tearing the clothing to shreds. The right shoe was torn almost to pieces. The man was tying his horse to a small tree at the time and fell a single instant before the horse. There was no mark discernable upon the horse, but the death of the man and horse was certainly instantaneous. An inquest was held and verdict rendered in accordance with the above facts. Deceased lived on the ranch of Antony Kambitch, was about 60 years of age and leaves a wife

BASE BALL.

[The following was written by a young lady who witnessed the ball game at Pima on the 24th; and was handed to us last week, and is published by request.]

The Gila Athletics
Thought they could play ball,
But when they met the Grant boys
They couldn't play at all.
They played once with the Globe team
And met with great defeat,
Globe can't do it again though,
For marbles, money or wheat.

The game played with the Grant team
Was twenty-one to six,
And I don't think that these boys
Again will ever mix.
Now boys, don't you quit playing,
But practice to play ball;
A little grit with practice
And you can do them all.

The first you want is a battery,
A pitcher anyhow,
And then put out the Indian
Or he's apt to cause a row;
Then you want two coachers,
Two men with presence of mind,
Then train your men to batting
And you won't come out behind.

You have a very good Captain;
One that understands the rule
And some of the men are daisys.
Yes, daisys like a mule.
You haven't had the practice,
Now, practise to play ball,
And when your well in practice
Why, challenge one and all.

QUITE a number of valuable horses have died in the valley recently from various causes.

THE farmers of this valley should not forget that the building of the Enterprise canal is the most practical method of solving the water question.

THE article in last week's issue under the head of "That Troublesome Law," in regard to the Classification Law was taken from the Phenix Herald.

WE can conceive of no reason why the laborer, the manufacturer, the farmer, the professional man and all, save the money-shark and interest-Shylock, should not be for a system that would mean enlarged foreign trade, busy factories, more consumers, with their more abundant demand, and greater prosperity for everybody, greater freedom for all, says the Wichita Eagle. Gold singly and alone becomes a tyrant, its owners absolute dictators, with kings and presidents their servants, law-making bodies their paid tools and whole peoples their slaves.

AN excellent solution of the Indian problem has been offered by the Denver News. It proposes to move all the Indians to the abandoned wastes of New England, near to the view and acquaintance of the Bostonese philanthropists. These critics know so much about Indians and negroes—a great deal more than do the people who live in the West and South—and the News wants to repopulate the New England States with Indians and let the associations and societies of that country run the business to suit themselves. Its a good suggestion and ought to work well.

THE United States outranks all other countries in the production of silver, Mexico being second on the list. This, doubtless, is a prominent reason why England is so anxious to get the United States upon a gold basis, as this fruitful source of wealth will be lost to the United States. This result will be a triumph to the great bunko steerer among the nations. Great Britain produced in 1894 only $329,700 in silver. She did not produce enough silver to plate the harness used by the royal household! England has to purchase silver in large quantities to supply the demand for fractional silver coin. If Great Britain can induce our Goveanment to deprive silver of its legal tender functions she can buy our silver bullion very cheap and use it in her trade with silver-using countries, so as to effectually deprive our cotton and grain raisers of a market for their surplus. We must sell at a gold valuation while Argentina and other competitors in the world's market can sell at a silver valuation! Would that the Lord sent us a deputation not of Democrats or Republicans but of patriots and statesmen. It is claimed that the Ruler of Nations, the King of Kings and the Lord of Lords provides suitable persons for every emergency. When a Washington was wanted the little George was born. When a Lincoln was indispensable an Abraham was created and commissioned. We hope that the imperative demand for American statesmen will be

INTER-STATE DEMANDS.

A QUEER dispute has arisen between the Governor of Illinois and the Governor of Indiana under the law of Congress which provides for the rendition of fugitives from justice who have fled from one State into another State.

Some time ago a man named David Bryan was charged with having committed some criminal form of swindling in Chicago. He was discovered in Indiana and Governor Altgeld of Illinois made a requisition upon Governor Matthews of Indiana for the surrender of the alleged fugitive. The demand was refused. Bryan had been arrested in Indiana upon some trivial charge there, and pending the hearing and determination of this charge Governor Matthews would not allow him to be taken out of the State.

Not long after this refusal Governor Matthews had occasion to issue a requisition for a man named John Williams, who was accused of having committed a crime in Clay county, Illinois. This requisition was not honored by Governor Altgeld. That magistrate does not propose to send any more citizens of Indiana back to Indiana until Governor Matthews sends Illinois men back to Illinois.

While it is doubtful wether any exact precedent can be found for this inter-State dispute, cases have not been infrequent where Governors have declined to comply with demands for the rendition of alleged fugitives from justice under the act of Congress. It was long ago held by the Supreme Court of the United States that the Federal statute is not mandatory, in the sense of implying any power on the part of the general Government to compel obedience by the Governor of a State. The act of Congress is simply a declaration of the moral duty imposed upon the State Executives by that provision of the Constitution of the United States which declares that a person charged in any State with treason, felony, or other crime who shall flee from justice and be found in another State shall, on demand of the executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

The leading case on this subject is that of the Commonwealth of Kentucky against Dennison. There the State of Kentucky applied to the Supreme Court at Washington for a writ of mandamus commanding the Governor of Ohio to deliver up to the Kentucky authorities one Willis Lago, a fugitive from Kentucky, who was indicted for having aided and assisted one Charlotte, a slave, to escape from his owner. Governor Dennison of Ohio declined to deliver up the fugitive, and the Supreme Court of the United States, speaking through Chief Justice Taney, unanimously held that there was no power delegated to the general Government, either through the Judiciary or any other department to use any coercive means to compel a Governor to obey Federal law relative to inter-State extradition.—N. Y. Sun.

WHEN Judge C. E. Moorman heard the news that the Supreme Court had upheld the Classification Law, there was a smile upon his countenance that resembled the brightening glow of a summer sunset in Arizona.

The Judge has taken quite a deep interest in the law, was earnest in his support of it, and had given his valuable assistance to the District Attorney in preparing the brief in the case, which was the cause of his being much elated over the news. Judge Moorman is also counsel in the injunction proceedings now pending against the Board of Supervisors.

COL. LEE CRANDALL has gone to Arizona to live and will concentrate there his Alabama and Washington City investments. He is interested in the Great Kasser Gold Mining Company near Globe in the Gila valley. The Colonel declares the climate there the most delightful in America and he is as fresh and happy in his new environment as a man of twenty-one only just upon the threshold of life.—People's Tribune.

FROM the appearance of the advertising columns of the Mohave County Miner one is led to believe that a bull-whacker is the artist on that sheet.

HE WANTED BLOOD.

An Insulted Bridegroom's Opinion of Illustrated Journalism.

"Is this the editor?"

"Yes, sir. What can I—"

"My name is Grumpy. I was married last week."

"Let me offer my congratulations, Mr. Grumpy. I am glad to see you. By the way, we published in this morning's paper a full account of your wedding."

"Yes, sir; I saw it."

"You have come, perhaps, to order some extra cop—"

"I have come, sir, for personal satisfaction. Your reporter asked for photographs of Mrs. Gumpy and myself, to use in writing up the wedding, sir."

"Yes, sir. Didn't he—"

"He said he would have engravings made from them and run them in with the article he wrote about the affair.'

"Yes. Was there any—"

"And some lop-eared, wopper-jawed, bow-legged, gourd-headed son of a printer in this office mixed up the portraits, sir. You published me this morning, sir, in your advertising columns as a Tennessee barber who had suffered for fifteen years with a lame back and a sore throat, and had been cured by twenty-seven bottles of 'Dr. Billjaw's Compound Extract of Hokus Pokus,' and you run the portrait of that infernal Tennessee barber in your account of my wedding, sir. You can stop my paper, sir. And now will you show me the typesetting department of this office? I am on the warpath this morning, sir, bigger than a grizzly bear, and I am going to find the man that mixed those cuts and reorganize him from the ground up."

In the excitement and confusion that followed, some one hastily turned in a fire alarm, and it took the entire department and a squad of police to quench the fiery young man.—Texas Siftings.

WANTED A SCRAP BOOK.

Farmer Asks for an Agricultural Report—Indifferent About the Date.

The official in charge of the correspondence of the agricultural department in Washington a few years ago was a gentleman of education and polish. But, above all, he was a conscientious and consummate letter writer. All the courteous expressions of governmental epistles were at his finger's ends, and it was a pleasure to him to impart to them a gracefulness that governmental letters sometimes lack.

He received a scrawly lettter one day. It was from Hosea Jones, of Goose Run, Wis. It was addressed to the "Agrycultral Department, Wash'ntn, D. C.," and it said: "Sir, I want a agreecultral repo't, an' bein' in the farmin' bisness I orter git it."

Now there are many agricultural reports of many dates and on many topics, and a request for one or more of these valuable and absorbing volumes should of necessity be more specific than Mr. Jones' request was. The official, having plenty of time, and seeing a chance for harmless pleasantry, indited an elaborate letter to the farmer, informing him of the eagerness with which the government desired to give the husbandmen of the nation all the information it had obtained as the result of scientific and practical research. This and more he wrote of the agricultural department's solicitude for the farmer, and then indicating the desirability of a specific statement as to the date or the subject of the report desired, he closed with an assurance of the secretary's esteem.

Mr. Jones responded promptly and somewhat laconically. "I don't care," he wrote, "what the book is about, or when it was rote. I want it fur a skrap book."—N. Y. World.

Latter-Day Whys.

In these century-end days, when everybody seems to be wholly absorbed in making his or her neighbor live up to higher ideals, it seems fitting to call attention to some matters which, though they lack the importance of equal suffrage or cycling as a proper recreation for women, are nevertheless disturbing factors in the problem of the perfected life. For instance:

Why will men carry half-smoked, burning cigars into "L" trains and cable cars, and why don't conductors stop it?

Why will women always ask the elevator boy to wait and then remember that they don't want to use it at all?

Why will a man bore his friends with stories of his wife and babies instead of going home to them?

Why will a woman always wait until she gets just in front of a ticket window before she tries to find her pocketbook?

Why will a man take fifteen minutes to tell you a story and then admit that he "can't tell it?"

Why will women try to ape men and then scorn any man who acts as they do?—N. Y. Recorder.

A Condensed Novel.

Same old story, only different. Big bank; trusted cashier. Cashier married, but—there are others. One of others beautiful woman. Double life, two establishments. Sounds swagger, but dangerous. Tried before. Too many bills. Deficit in bank, forty-seven thousand dollars. Directors didn't direct. Some other others. Cashier in jail. Bank shutters up. Wife in hysterics, children disgraced. Always are. Beautiful woman off with another man. Cashier chump. Got found out. Best thing—get found out. Sentence soon; ten years, perhaps. Making shoes in sweet by and by.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A Considerate Man.

A club man who was the victim of strong drink visited a wealthy gentleman who showed him over his extensive grounds. Coming to a beautiful spring of water the host said: "The pride of my park is this beautiful natural spring. You will not find such cool, clear water anywhere else. Refresh yourself with a glass of this delicious beverage of nature."

Club Man—Thank you, but please excuse me. I don't want to rob you.—Texas Siftings.

WE wonder if the money-grabers will tell us that the high wages and good times they have been howling so much about caused the 16,000 tailors, who are now on a strike in New York and Brooklin because their employers would not pay them from $9 to $15 per week each, to go out.

RIPENING OF WINE.

How the Juice of the Grape Is Treated in Switzerland.

The wine in Switzerland is left in the casks till the following spring, and it is here that fermentation takes place and the mout is converted into wine, says the Cornhill Magazine. The change begins almost immediately; the liquid becomes turbid, carbolic acid gas is evolved, a scum is thrown up on the surface and the temperature rises. A climax is reached; the intensity of the fermentation diminishes, subsides; the scum settles as a slimy deposit at the bottom of the cask and a clear yellow liquid is left above. The grape sugar has almost entirely disappeared, a corresponding amount of alcohol has taken its place, and the sweet taste of the mout has given place to the characteristic vinous flavor of the wine.

In the early stages of fermentation enormous quantities of carbonic acid gas are given off, and huge fires are made in the cellars to drive it away. But at the time I write of (October, 1893), when the vintage was the finest of the century, when barrels to hold mout could not be purchased for love or money, when every cellar on the lake from Geneva to Villeneuve was packed with casks of mout, so great was the amount of carbonic acid gas in the air that, in spite of every precaution, several deaths from suffocation took place among the workers. In the spring the wine is drawn off clear into other barrels, then bottled; vin ordinaire is not bottled at all, but simply drawn from the wood. This is the wine sold at all the little wineshops with which Switzerland abounds. It is drawn off into quaint little glass decanters containing half a liter each, and so served to the unhurrying Swiss, who drink it round little tables under the trees on the sunny pathways or over wooden benches inside the red-curtained wineshops.

USE OF THE SHOTGUN.

Proper Care in Handling to Prevent Accidents.

A good sportsman is familiar with his piece, and brave enough to be afraid of it, says Harper's Round Table. From the time he takes it out of the case the muzzle of the barrels is on his mind until he has taken it to pieces, cleaned it, and put it away in his case. When he starts out in the morning, he takes out the barrels, and pointing them towards the earth as he holds them in his left hand, he springs the stock into its place with his right. Then having fixed on the little piece of wood which clinches the two parts together, he passes his right arm around the barrels, so that as he carries it the stock points up and behind him at an angle of about forty-five degrees, and the barrels point down toward the earth at a similar angle in front of him. Around his waist or in his pockets he carries cartridges. No charge goes into his gun until he has not only left the house, but actually arrived on the grounds where he expects to find game. If he has to drive to the proper woods or the shooting-stands or blinds, he places the piece in the bottom of the wagon, pointing out toward the rear, never once allowing it to point towards himself or anyone else who may be standing by. If he is near enough to the woods or shore to walk he carries the gun as described, unloaded, until he reaches the proper place. When climbing over fences, whether with cartridges in place or not, he places the gun under the fence flat on the ground, climbs over or under, and then picks it up from the other side. Resting a shooting-piece against a fence or wall in an upright position shows the greenhorn or the careless and therefore poor sportsman.

MESSENGERS OF THE SKY.

About the Remarkable Kites Made by the Japanese and Chinese.

In the making of kites shape is no consideration. A square, circle, man, star, fish, dragon, horse or shield will fly equally well, but they must be equally proportioned. In Japan one sees a whole menagerie at once in the air—horses, cows, monkeys, bats, fishes, crows and snakes, as well as dragons, babies which cry, boys with their arms and legs spread out, hunters and soldiers.

"Fighting kites" are seen everywhere in both China and Japan.

The armed kite is usually made about two and a half feet high and covered with cambric or silk. The tail may be made of strips of bright-colored cloth about one inch wide, securely tied in the middle to a strong twine. The destructive part of this kite lies in the tail, to which are attached sharp pieces of broken glass called knives. Fasten three of these knives together with wax, so that each shall point in a different direction, bind on three slips of thin wood lengthwise to hold the wax and glass firmly, and cover with cloth or kid.

A much simpler weapon is made by dipping the ten feet of string next to the kite in glue and then rolling it in pounded glass until thickly coated with a glistening armor of sharp points. The object with both is, of course, to cut your opponent's string. The skillful maneuvering which this requires is very good practice in training one to act quickly. It is considered dishonorable to cut an unarmed kite.

Blacksmith's Faces.

Is the blacksmith's trademark a scowl? A writer on "Trades and Faces," in Blackwood's Magazine finds the following to say about him: In most blacksmiths the constant exercise of the corrugator supercili muscles causes a permanent frown, and gives the face a somewhat hard expression; but whether there is any inward and spiritual state corresponding with this outward and visible sign I am not quite sure. Whether their characters in any way correspond with their acquired expressions I did not discover; there was a grave courtesy in their demeanor while in hospital which was singularly dignified and pleasing, although always slightly suggestive of the politeness of foes during an armistice.

Powder Puffs.

Probably not many women know where the powder puffs with which alabaster brows and blushing cheeks are produced come from. There is a place in Chicago where some nimble fingered girls are engaged all the year round in making them. The material is the soft, fluffy down from cygnets or young swans, and it comes largely from the islands of the Baltic sea.

THE Populists of Ohio have nominated Coxey for Governor of that State!

A CORNER FOR WOMEN.

THE British matron is nettled by Daudet's caustic observations on her lack of physical charms and of her taste in dress. She says in reply that the French novelist saw very little of England.

JIM FISK was worth about two million dollars when he was killed by Ed. Stokes. To-day Fisk's widow is living in a humble frame house in the tenement district of Boston on an income of fifty dollars a month.

RUFUS WATERHOUSE, a wealthy manufacturer of men's furnishing goods in New York, recently deceased, has left a legacy of two hundred thousand dollars to found a consumption ward in St. Luke's hospital, to be named in honor of his deceased wife.

MRS. CLEVELAND'S great fondness for flowers is well known, and she has an especial fancy for great flowering plants, but is enthusiastic over all flowers, from the most modest wild flower to the conservatory-bred rose and orchid.

LONG as she has resided in England, the princess of Wales has never mastered the English accent. "Channel," for instance, she pronounces "shannel," and there are many other little difficulties of speech which betray that she is a foreigner born and bred.

MRS. IDA BUXTON COLE, prominent among suffrage speakers, says: "We read in the Bible that after the Israelites were all worn out with wrangling and dissensions God gave them a woman—Deborah—to judge them; she ruled over them for forty years, and we read that 'then they had a rest.'"

AN appeal has been issued to the women of the south for funds with which to build a monument to the mother of Gen. Robert E. Lee. An association formed for the purpose has the matter in charge. It is proposed to erect the monument in the churchyard of Christ church, Alexandria, Va.

FROM BARRACKS AND CAMP.

JAPAN'S war in Formosa is likely to increase the price of camphor, as that island and Japan are the ch ef places from which we obtain the drug.

JAPAN proposes to build a steel tower 1,000 feet high at Tokio to commemorate its victory over China. It will be adorned with statues of Japanese worthies.

ANTON LIPP, of Miskolcz, the last Hungarian survivor of the battle of Leipzig, died lately at 102. For some years he had been the only living person wearing the "cannon cross," made of the guns taken in the battle, the emblem of the military order established by Emperor Francis of Austria for the campaigns of 1813 and 1814. His cross was buried with him.

SOME of the troops engaged in the Chitral campaign seem to have learned the lesson of saving their ammunition. At the taking of the Malakand pass, the Second brigade, which bore the brunt of the fighting, with 2,825 men, fired only 19,745 rounds, an average of less than seven per man. The engagement lasted several hours, and was the first in which the Lee-Metford rifle has been used with cordite.

NAMES OF OUR RIVERS.

THE Acquia creek, in Virginia, has an Indian name, signifying "muddy water."

LACKAWANNA is a corruption of the Indian words lechan-hanne, "the stream that forks."

HUMBOLDT river, in Nevada, was named by Fremont in honor of Baron Humboldt.

THE Ocklockonee, in Florida, is named from a Seminole word, meaning "yellow water."

THE Atchafalaya, in Louisiana, was named by the Choctaws. The word means "long river."

THE East river, North river and South river, at New York, were named by the Dutch.

THE GERMAN EMPIRE.

GERMAN frugality is shown in the letting of the old Reichstag building for business purposes at $500 a year.

SLAG from blast furnaces is pulverized and used for fertilizing farm lands in Germany.

IN North Schleswig the Danish Language society has been ordered to dissolve, as the Kiel judges decide that it is a political club.

BERLIN is the most cosmopolitan of large European cities. Only thirty-seven per cent. of its inhabitants are German by birth.

A SOCIETY for the suppression of scandal has just been started at Insterburg in East Prussia. Every scandalous story spread in the town will be traced and the originator prosecuted by the society.

Insects on the Track.

In Russian Turkestan a train was recently stopped by caterpillars. The insects were crossing the track when the cars struck them, crushing them into an oily paste, which made the rails and wheels so slippery that another locomotive was required to move the train. The same thing happened in Kansas during the last locust invasion.

AMERICAN FACTORY FIGURES.

IN the Indian territory only 175 persons are engaged in manufacturing, their annual output being $248,932.

WEST VIRGINIA has 21,969 hands in her manufacturing establishments and turns out $68,702,125 worth of product.

THE proportion between capital and product has steadily diminished since 1850 from 80 per cent. down to 71 per cent.

THE woolen factories of this country are mostly located in New York, New England, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

MONTANA has only 2,696 persons employed in factories, these establishments turning out a product valued at $5,507,573.

MULHALL says that the manufactures of the United States exceed those of Great Britain in the proportion of seven to four.

IN the manufactories of Alabama there are employed 33,821 hands who turn out annually $51,226,605 worth of product.

IN 1880 the gross product of the woolen mills was valued at $267,000,000; ten years later it had increased to $338,000,000.

THE state of Iowa is so far from being wholly agricultural that it has 59,174 persons engaged in its factories, whose annual output is $125,049,183.

VIRGINIA is becoming important as a manufacturing state, having 59,591 manufacturing hands, who make a product valued at $88,303,824.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

THE Connecticut river was named by the Dutch Versche river, "fresh river."

QUICKSILVER, poured in a glass, will not fill it to the brim, as it forms a convex surface, and is higher in the center than at the brim.

A NOVEL way of committing suicide was attempted by a crazy negro in Corydon, Ky. He clutched a mule's tail, and clung fast to it until the animal had almost kicked him to death.

A TIGER lately on exhibition in Lyons, France, became ill and died. An autopsy revealed the fact that for months the animal had been a sufferer from a well-developed case of Bright's disease.

'LONGSHORE folks in Maine are telling about a big "white whale" which has been seen cruising off the coast in that region lately. It is said to be about forty feet long and "of a grayish black color."

THREE brothers, Victor, Peter and Frank Koch, were married at the same time and place, on May 3, 1870. They and their wives recently celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary in Scranton, Pa.

A CERTAIN household in Saugus, Me., continued in a state of excitement from hazy morn till dewy eve. Between the hours of dawn and dark the members were kept busy with a fire, a birth, a death and a marriage.

THE only man present at the funeral of Miss Bertha Rose, who died lately in Clermont, Fla., was the driver of the hearse. She belonged to a club composed of women, and insisted that only women should take part in her obsequies.

A SMATTERING OF SCIENCE.

EXPERIMENTS to find whether argon can be obtained from vegetable or animal tissue have resulted negatively, the quantity of the new gas obtained in this way not being appreciable.

IT is believed that the elephant, the rhinoceros, the bear, the hyena, and other wild animals, were at one time common in England. The bones of those animals have been found in Kent's cavern, about a mile from Torquay.

ACCORDING to Prof. Barnard, there is no ground for the supposition that the rings of Saturn are closing in upon the planet, as his observations show that no changes have taken place since the first systematic measures were made.

ABOUT WOMEN.

MISS MARY ROSE SARTORIS, daughter of Mrs. Nellie Grant-Sartoris, is suffering from an accident, the result of an experience on a bicycle.

REV. ANNA SHAW was asked to name one of the big trees in the Yosemite valley, and she chose one of a group of three particularly fine ones and named it Susan B. Anthony.

MISS MARIA M. LOVE, of the Buffalo W. C. T. U., told the local conference of charities and corrections recently that if girls would learn to cook, sew and keep house tidily there would be less drinking by men.

MISS POWDERLY, the American secretary to Lady Henry Somerset, is a New England woman with a college education. She is a linguist, musician, stenographer and typewriter, besides being a very beautiful penman.

SCIENTIFIC PROGRESS.

A MAN in Unionville, Mo., claims that saltpeter is an infallible cure for snake bite, and cites personal experience in support of his claim.

IT is said the wound made by the tooth of the cobra species of serpent is a mere puncture and causes little swelling. Death ensues from paralysis of the nerve centers.

PROF. RUNGE, of Hanover, says that the bright yellow line in the spectrum of gas from cleveite is double. This destroys its identity with the helium line unless that can also be shown to be double.

A shameful story, a story that ought to be incredible, is printed for truth in Kate Field's Washington: A well-dressed young woman recently went to one of the taxidermists of the Smithsonian institution, carrying with her in a cage a bright canary bird. "I have hunted all over the city for a bird of just this color," she explained, "because I want him to match a gown I am having made." She wished the taxidermist to kill it and set it up, that she might wear it as an ornament! Thousands of women wear birds on their hats, the more is the pity; but probably no civilized woman ever before

LATE EDITORIAL.

If you want to invest your money in a business investment come to Safford. You will not be disappointed.

Much pressure is being brought to bear to cause the legislature now in session at Honolulu to adopt a joint resolution instructing President Dole to open annexation negotations with the United States.

The Los Angeles Express says: Arizona has added to her mineral productions lithographing stone, the first ever produced in the western hemisphere. The future of Arizona grows more promising continually.

There is no place in all creation with brighter prospects for the future than has Graham county. We have a pure healthy climate, productive soil and plenty of it; some of the richest mines on earth, and an intelligent, progressive people. What more can we ask.

If anybody thinks the national game is becoming a back number let them go to Illinois and umpire a game. At Quincy, Ill., a few days ago the crowd attempted to lynch the umpire, and would have succeeded but for the interference of the police and sheriff, who were assisted by a posse.

Brother Dunbar is again at the editorial helm of the Gazette and the craft is again surging forward under a full head of steam. John is a "hummer" and no mistake, and his enemies might as well try to keep a duck perpetually out of water as to try to keep him out of Arizona journalism. C. P. Lietch is said to be the present owner of the Gazette and we wish "Col." all the success in the world in his new venture.

On July 26th a meeting was called at Silver City to determine whether or not the people of that city should accept the aid proffered by eastern cities on account of the recent disasterous floods which damaged that city, and with true western pluck the meeting voted almost unanimously that they would not accept outside aid, but that the home business men were able to properly take care of those in destitute circumstances.

Every time the train arrives in Safford there is always a crowd of boys ready to board it several hundred yards before it reaches the station; and every time it moves in the yards they are continually hopping on and off the train, and some have even been known to ride a quarter of a mile and leave the train when it is moving at full speed. This is very dangerous pastime for boys and should be stopped. Parents ought to be very careful about allowing their boys to play near the depot during the time the train is there. Now is the time to take warning and prevent your sons from being brought home to you with their bodies mangled from the train passing over them.

It is only through the practical operation of bimetallism that a stable standard of value can be secured. A standard constituted of money constantly increasing in value is not a sound, a single nor a stable standard, but a constantly changing standard. The effect of gold monometallism is to establish one standard for the creditor and another for the debtor, and there can be no more dishonest monetary system than that which gives short measure to the borrower and long measure to the lender. Under the policy prevailing prior to 1873 there can be no violent change in the relative value of the two metals, for a raise in value of one metal is counteracted by a decreased demand, and a fall in value by an increased demand. Under the operations of this beneficial law a stable relation was maintained between them in spite of the most extreme changes in relative productions. From the earliest period of our history up to 1873 the right of the debtor to choose whether he should pay his debts in silver or gold coin was always recognized. The subsequent policy has been to transfer this right to the creditor, thus tending to constantly increase the value of the dearer metal and destroy the parity between them.

NO MONOPOLY.

The Silver Belt lets forth the following in regard to the action of Graham county officials in attempting to collect the tax of the new railroad:

"We cannot question that the action of the Board of Supervisors of Graham county, in attempting to reach Globe by rail, is the ultima thule of those for whom they are acting. Wagon transportation is the utmost boundary of their desire, as is evidenced by the negative vote of their representatives—Shannon, Brewer and Skinner—upon the passage of the bill exempting all railroads from taxation and their personal property used in the actual operation or construction of such railroad, until the first day of March in the year 1903."

Our venerable brother Hackney usually makes use of some very sensible utterances, but now and then he sloshes around like a horse with an acute attack of the "bots." The Guardian is opposed to the Railroad Exemption Law, and wishes its readers to know it, but it appears that Bro. Hackney has no use for the Guardian, never has had, and looses no opportunity to manifest opposition to this paper and its policy. Brother Hackney does not believe in two papers in one county. He loves the field to himself. He hates competition. He hates to be crowded. He believes that public funds are a "private pudding," so far as the official paper is concerned. He wishes but one paper in Gila county and therefore has no love for the example set by the Guardian in bobbing up in his neighboring county of Graham and sailing so majestically before the breeze.

The Guardian detests monopoly among newspapers, as well as all other monopoly. It believes in fair play and no pets, applied to railroads and newspapers alike, and approves the acts of our representatives. In this country we believe in carrying nobody. Pay your fare or else get out and walk. That is the motto of the Guardian. Brother Hackney, we would kindly and fraternally suggest that you take a good, hot, red-pepper foot bath at night, with an internal application to your stomach of "chile-con-carne," plunge into bed with a horse blanket around your head, and perhaps the morning may find your pulse more regular, your digestion improved and your spirits more congenial and somewhat attuned to your surroundings. Our prescription is gratuitous.

Two balloonists at Phenix are now laid up for repairs. Last week they arranged for an ascention; one of them seated himself on the trapeze bar of the parachute, and commenced the journey skyward; all went well until the balloon had reached a height of about 30 feet when the rope gave way and he came to earth again with a thud that caused him to see stars for several minutes. The crowd was disappointed and his partner promised that he would make an ascention himself the same evening. At 8 o'clock, according to agreement, he commenced the upward journey. At the height of several hundred feet the parachute was cut loose, and he shot towards the earth in safety until he was directly over a house when the parachute gave a lurch to one side, mopping the aeronaut acros the roof of the house with terrible force, which caused him to let go the parachute and drop to the ground insensible, and he is now wondering how it all happened.

The I. O. G. T.

The public installation of officers of the Good Templars took place in the Safford Drug Co's building last Tuesday night as per previously arranged program. The house was crowed with an attentive audience, and Mrs. J. D. Hartzler administered the oath and installed the officers after which the following program was rendered: Recitations by Liliie Morris, Wilson Ore and Ella Ore, and address by Judge McCollum, recitation by Joseph Place, and address by Wm. Place, recitation by Myrtle Hartzler, singing of closing ode and prayer.

The lodge people had provided an ice cream supper in the basement, together with cake and lemonade, the proceedings of which are to be used in the purchase of an organ for the lodge which it is badly in need of. After the regular program, different amusements were indulged in until about 11:30, when the lodge people turned the house over to the proprietors and they in turn turned it over to the young people who procured music and indulged in dancing until about 3 o'clock. Every body expressed themselves as having passed an enjoyable and instructive evening and the membership of the lodge was increased to 70.

The Phenix Republican is suffering from an acute attack of some sort which needs the immediate attintion of some one skilled in political physics. Phenix atmosphere seems to have inoculated its system to such an extent that it snaps at imaginary objects like a demented canine in dog-days. Its quill driver had better flee from that Babylon of political debauchery for a while and come over into the pure and wholesome atmosphere of Old Graham, where we are all at peace, in love with each other, don't poke our noses into other people's affairs, where we keep our heads cool, our temperature normal and our breath sweet, where we enjoy the unceasing odor of our countless alfalfa fields, where there is an apiary near every doorstep to sweeten our joys of life, where the perpetual gurgle of our irrigating canals lulls us to slumber by its peaceful music commingled with the chorus of native song-birds, and where we have more pretty girls to the acre than all the rest of the universe combined from Kalamazoo to Kingdom come. Come brother, come at once.

The article written by Prof. Tully on the new School Law arrived to late for publication this week but will appear in our next issue.

Death of Judge Alexander.

At 4 o'clock one week ago to day the soul of Judge H. N. Alexander, of Phenix, passed from this world to the world beyond. His death was sudden and unexpected, caused by heart failure. He was born in Zanesville O., Oct 24th 1832 being 62 years of age at the time of his death. He came to the Pacific coast in 1851 and located at San Francisco. From that time he lived in various parts of California until 1864 when he came to Arizona and located at Yuma, where he acted as master of transportation for the government in Arizona during war times. In 1883 he located at Phenix where he has resided ever since as a sucessful lawyer.

The deceased leaves a wife, three sons and two daughters. J. L. B. Alexander, clerk of the supreme court, is one of the sons, and Mrs. A. C. Baker, wife of the chief justice, is his daughter.

It is only through the practical operation of bimetallism that a stable standard of value can be secured. A standard constituted of money constantly increasing in value is not a sound, a single nor a stable standard, but a constantly changing standard. The effect of gold monometallism is to establish one standard for the creditor and another for the debtor, and there can be no more dishonest monetary system than that which gives short measure to the borrower and long measure to the lender. Under the policy prevailing prior to 1873 there can be no violent change in the relative value of the two metals, for a raise in value of one metal is counteracted by a decreased demand, and a fall in value by an increased demand. Under the operations of this beneficial law a stable relation was maintained between them in spite of the most extreme changes in relative productions. From the earliest period of our history up to 1873 the right of the debtor to choose whether he should pay his debts in silver or gold coin was always recognized. The subsequent policy has been to transfer this right to the creditor, thus tending to constantly increase the value of the dearer metal and destroy the parity between them.

NO MONOPOLY.

The Silver Belt lets forth the following in regard to the action of Graham county officials in attempting to collect the tax of the new railroad:

"We cannot question that the action of the Board of Supervisors of Graham county, in attempting to reach Globe by rail, is the ultima thule of those for whom they are acting. Wagon transportation is the utmost boundary of their desire, as is evidenced by the negative vote of their representatives—Shannon, Brewer and Skinner—upon the passage of the bill exempting all railroads from taxation and their personal property used in the actual operation or construction of such railroad, until the first day of March in the year 1903."

Our venerable brother Hackney usually makes use of some very sensible utterances, but now and then he sloshes around like a horse with an acute attack of the "bots." The Guardian is opposed to the Railroad Exemption Law, and wishes its readers to know it, but it appears that Bro. Hackney has no use for the Guardian, never has had, and looses no opportunity to manifest opposition to this paper and its policy. Brother Hackney does not believe in two papers in one county. He loves the field to himself. He hates competition. He hates to be crowded. He believes that public funds are a "private pudding," so far as the official paper is concerned. He wishes but one paper in Gila county and therefore has no love for the example set by the Guardian in bobbing up in his neighboring county of Graham and sailing so majestically before the breeze.

The Guardian detests monopoly among newspapers, as well as all other monopoly. It believes in fair play and no pets, applied to railroads and newspapers alike, and approves the acts of our representatives. In this country we believe in carrying nobody. Pay your fare or else get out and walk. That is the motto of the Guardian. Brother Hackney, we would kindly and fraternally suggest that you take a good, hot, red-pepper foot bath at night, with an internal application to your stomach of "chile-con-carne," plunge into bed with a horse blanket around your head, and perhaps the morning may find your pulse more regular, your digestion improved and your spirits more congenial and somewhat attuned to your surroundings. Our prescription is gratuitous.

Two balloonists at Phenix are now laid up for repairs. Last week they arranged for an ascention; one of them seated himself on the trapeze bar of the parachute, and commenced the journey skyward; all went well until the balloon had reached a height of about 30 feet when the rope gave way and he came to earth again with a thud that caused him to see stars for several minutes. The crowd was disappointed and his partner promised that he would make an ascention himself the same evening. At 8 o'clock, according to agreement, he commenced the upward journey. At the height of several hundred feet the parachute was cut loose, and he shot towards the earth in safety until he was directly over a house when the parachute gave a lurch to one side, mopping the aeronaut acros the roof of the house with terrible force, which caused him to let go the parachute and drop to the ground insensible, and he is now wondering how it all happened.

The I. O. G. T.

The public installation of officers of the Good Templars took place in the Safford Drug Co's building last Tuesday night as per previously arranged program. The house was crowed with an attentive audience, and Mrs. J. D. Hartzler administered the oath and installed the officers after which the following program was rendered: Recitations by Liliie Morris, Wilson Ore and Ella Ore, and address by Judge McCollum, recitation by Joseph Place, and address by Wm. Place, recitation by Myrtle Hartzler, singing of closing ode and prayer.

The lodge people had provided an ice cream supper in the basement, together with cake and lemonade, the proceedings of which are to be used in the purchase of an organ for the lodge which it is badly in need of. After the regular program, different amusements were indulged in until about 11:30, when the lodge people turned the house over to the proprietors and they in turn turned it over to the young people who procured music and indulged in dancing until about 3 o'clock. Every body expressed themselves as having passed an enjoyable and instructive evening and the membership of the lodge was increased to 70.

The Phenix Republican is suffering from an acute attack of some sort which needs the immediate attintion of some one skilled in political physics. Phenix atmosphere seems to have inoculated its system to such an extent that it snaps at imaginary objects like a demented canine in dog-days. Its quill driver had better flee from that Babylon of political debauchery for a while and come over into the pure and wholesome atmosphere of Old Graham, where we are all at peace, in love with each other, don't poke our noses into other people's affairs, where we keep our heads cool, our temperature normal and our breath sweet, where we enjoy the unceasing odor of our countless alfalfa fields, where there is an apiary near every doorstep to sweeten our joys of life, where the perpetual gurgle of our irrigating canals lulls us to slumber by its peaceful music commingled with the chorus of native song-birds, and where we have more pretty girls to the acre than all the rest of the universe combined from Kalamazoo to Kingdom come. Come brother, come at once.

The article written by Prof. Tully on the new School Law arrived to late for publication this week but will appear in our next issue.

Death of Judge Alexander.

At 4 o'clock one week ago to day the soul of Judge H. N. Alexander, of Phenix, passed from this world to the world beyond. His death was sudden and unexpected, caused by heart failure. He was born in Zanesville O., Oct 24th 1832 being 62 years of age at the time of his death. He came to the Pacific coast in 1851 and located at San Francisco. From that time he lived in various parts of California until 1864 when he came to Arizona and located at Yuma, where he acted as master of transportation for the government in Arizona during war times. In 1883 he located at Phenix where he has resided ever since as a sucessful lawyer.

The deceased leaves a wife, three sons and two daughters. J. L. B. Alexander, clerk of the supreme court, is one of the sons, and Mrs. A. C. Baker, wife of the chief justice, is his daughter.
